Enhancing the environmental and economic viability of

Downtown Seaside for the local community and visitors

CLATSOP COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Following the Clatsop Community College Board of Directors' decision not to change its Small Business Management Program, which has successfully served the north coast business community for over 30 years, the fee for next fall's Program is set at only $595 for the entire school year. Each additional person, beyond two from the same business will pay only $195. Yes, "only" because that still keeps us among the least expensive Small Business Management Programs in the state. Due to the relatively small first and second year classes and the correspondingly large graduating class, there will more availability this fall. But you shouldn't delay. The college has stated that it cannot afford to pay overload for extra businesses – enrollment will be limited. Contact the instructor, Jim Entler, at jentler@clatsopcc.edu for more information or to be placed on the waiting list for fall.
